

ABOUT MARC MAZZARELLI

Marc Mazzarelli is an oil painter and landscape architect in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Marc's paintings are inspired by current events, historical themes, literary references, idealized gardens, and industrial scenes. His pictures include implied horizon lines and referential shapes that allow viewers to freely interpret the compositions as actual places or imagined scenes. His distinctive use of vibrant colors and minimal forms is exuberant, uplifting and evoke dream-like landscapes and surreptitious topographic worlds. Marc earned a Master's degree in Landscape Architecture from Harvard University and received undergraduate degrees in Landscape Architecture and Fine Arts from Rhode Island School of Design. He was a visiting artist at the American Academy in Rome in 2003 and 2018.
